A carefully Selected List of the CHOICEST Modern Varieties

AT SPECIAL PRICES

For Orders booked before September 15th

Duchess De Nemours

All varieties sent out by us are true to name

The roots are extra strong. "One-year" roots have grown a full year since division. "Two-year" roots have grown two years since division and "Three-year" roots three years since division. The latter will make large bushy plants at once, but even the "One-year" roots will invariably bloom in the Spring following.

It will be to your advantage to send us your order promptly upon receipt of this list, as some of the newer varieties are as yet in limited supply and we do not substitute.

All orders will be promptly acknowledged and shipment can be made on any specified date after September 15th.

A Few Hints for Success with Peonies

The best time to plant Peony roots is from September 15, to November 1. Early planting is recommended as it enables the roots to become established in their new position before winter sets in. Although they succeed in most any soil and under all conditions it will amply repay you to give special attention to the preparation of the soil before planting, especially if exhibition flowers are wanted. A Peony once set out is a permanent investment and if well planted, pays its annual dividend of delight to its owner.

Spade the soil as deeply as possible and add a liberal supply of WELL ROTTED manure to it, if this is not obtainable, sheep manure is recommended. Fork over three or four times so as to get the soil finely pulverized and the manure thoroughly mixed with it. Where space is limited, the roots may be set 2 to 2½ feet apart each way and the upper eyes should be about 2 inches under the soil, Deep planting often causes blind growth. Watering is not necessary after planting, but is very beneficial in early spring after growth appears above ground, and if rains prove infrequent, bed should be well watered at least once a week, this will help to promote strong growth and produce large flowers.

Peonies often bring forth 3 or 4 buds on a stem all of which should be removed except the large center bud, if fine large blooms are wanted.

The Peony is practically free from diseases and insects; the ants often seen on the buds do no harm and disappear before the flower opens.

It is perfectly hardy even in the most severe climate and requires no protection except possibly the first winter after planting while the roots are still loose in the ground. Keep the soil free from weeds at all times and do not cut down the foliage before September as it is needed for the development of the roots for next season.

Our list includes only the cream of the most modern sorts, and the roots we send out are extra strong and well established.
